

Extraordinary People

... personalized care

Every newborn delivery is a special experience, and Heather is proud to be part of it. Her calm, positive manner complements the emotions that surround birthing and newborn care.

Heather says, "Parents come in so excited, but they can be anxious and overwhelmed, too. We provide a lot of teaching. I tell them to trust their instincts and they will figure out the cues from their babies."

"I became an RN after having had such great experiences at this hospital with my own deliveries. I grew up here, so it is nice to help people I know from the community and make new friendships. In a big city, those connections just wouldn't be the same."
