... personalized care

Wherever Katrina goes, she is likely to hear the same enthusiastic greeting: "Hey, MRI girl!" That's because she makes each magnetic resonance imaging exam a memorable experience.

Her first goal is to neutralize the anxiety that some people feel about this high-tech diagnostic test. A blend of education, expertise and a calming manner is Katrina's key to success.

Katrina says, "I tell each patient what to expect, then talk them through the exam. I have them pretend they are at the beach or on a favorite vacation. It's an opportunity to work some magic. Then we're done, we have a quality image and we can celebrate. I love that part – that's what we're here for."
